WHAT'S THE GAME PLAN FOR YOUR SECOND HALF?

PREPARING FOR SUCCESS AFTER PROFESSIONAL SPORTS

Professional Coaches and Athletes are unique investors with the potential for great financial and celebrity gain in a short period. You face a long list of both positive and negative possibilities that often require sound decisions to be made quickly amid overlapping life events. This ever-changing landscape creates a challenging environment in which athletes and coaches are expected to make intelligent decisions while faced with the added pressures of celebrity status, complex retirement planning, and often unique family dynamics.

Unlike traditional investors with careers that span more than 40 years, professional athletes and coaches often have a short window to save for a lengthy retirement. Without a specific framework to address these challenges, making sound financial decisions can be an overwhelming task and far different from those decisions that created your success.

We understand the need for athletes and coaches to make meaningful financial decisions early in their professional careers to preserve their wealth and successfully transition into a life of impact, joy, and balance after the game. We aim to work with you to build a flexible financial game plan that can serve as a stable place to stand while life is moves towards the second half of your life's game plan.
